

Injured Jockeys Fund update on George Baker

George and his wife, Nicola, returned to England on Monday where George was admitted to The Wellington Hospital, London. In due course George will leave the intensive care area and move to the rehabilitation wing of the hospital.

Nicola and George have many people to whom they would like to express their gratitude. They would like to thank the medical staff who attended to George immediately after his fall together with the air ambulance crew, whose initial treatment was so important; the staff at Graubünden Hospital; Dr Jerry Hill of the BHA; the PJA and Guy Jewell, George's agent, for all that he did to assist the family.

Finally, the family would like to reiterate their sincere thanks for all the messages of support from family and friends, George's colleagues and the wider racing public.

Any media enquiries from now on should be directed to the Injured Jockeys Fund.
